Whispers from The Brighter World

Tuesday, July 7, 2015 – 10:00 a.m.

The messages will remain a very precious asset for our Mission, and the future will give them a certain importance, for the good of all our brothers and sisters. Writings live on, it is said, and history sufficiently demonstrates it; thanks to this, so many testimonies remain accessible and known to the greatest number of people.

Our Mission has many assets, and its expansion in the world creates a large network, thus making all of our teachings, in different forms, available to everyone. Modern life and its means of communication are a precious commodity in this respect. This world does not lack resources, and yet happiness and harmony are far from prevailing here below. By nature, human beings always look outside themselves for what is within their reach in the innermost depths of their being. It does take time to get this principle accepted; the heart, seat of the soul, is not easy to define in its spiritual dimension, unrecognised as such by a majority of human beings, quite far from all these concepts that are completely beyond them.

The time of knowledge will come; it will take centuries and significant changes in this world for all of humanity to awaken to 'Reality', that reality which is decisive in each person's process. It all happens at the pace of this world, very precisely. We help in our own manner, and we ensure that our abhyasis rise through diligent practice and our ceaseless transmission; this enables them to cross a level that can help them on their journey and strengthen them in the face of the ups and downs of life here below.

With all our love.
