My Beloved Master
Revered Babuji Maharaj

Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, July 12, 2015 — 10:00 a.m.

Your heart is yearning for love, and we fulfil it in our own manner. How could we ignore it? All of us here are sensitive to the love of those beings who are faithful to us and who work for the good of this way; whether it is about honouring the practice or serving the Mission, everything is well appreciated. Time is precious, and one cannot make up for its loss. A soul in need is always heard and fulfilled in the best possible way.

"India, this dear country where the Sahaj Marg Mission was founded, has always attracted great and beautiful souls. These souls often meet again from one lifetime to the next in the service of a noble cause, and this principle will prevail more and more in the future when this country will have become the pure jewel of spirituality. We can only rejoice in that. This world is bound to be subjected to many changes; such has always been the case throughout history, as indeed great changes have occurred in the distant past.

"This is true of evolution in a world that is surprising in many respects. Humanity must go through extreme phases before reaching a more appropriate balance, one that is in harmony with divine principles. Our Sahaj Marg Mission is adjusting itself effectively; its development meets certain criteria that will enable a future expansion that can hardly be imagined today, and yet it will be so for the good of all our aspirants who practise this way of the heart. May all be committed for the highest good and thus save valuable time. We are helping them; this is how it is."

Babuji Maharaj