Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, September 25, 2015 — 10:30 a.m.

Everything is going well for him, and all is for the best. Our beloved Kamlesh is assessing the scope of the task awaiting him — he will be able to face up to it. We did not choose him in vain, and in due time he will make the necessary arrangements for the good of this rapidly growing Mission. Sahaj Marg is not trivial; its action goes well beyond people's perception. We repeat ourselves, but what else can be done in this world of illusions that is so often deceived by false appearances.

"Happy Birthday to our dear son, chosen by all our hearts — we who are gathered here for this very special event for which our blessings are already, and especially, being bestowed on him. We will revert to this later. The great day is approaching; may all give due attention to this special time. The best to this Mission and to all the beings who keep it working on a daily basis."
