Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, November 9, 2015 – 10:00 a.m.

So many messages have been written down within this sacred space, where every day we find the way to your heart – a heart completely surrendered to our action. You are not spared suffering; we too have endured in our bodies the manifestation of the Spirit when necessary, for reasons beyond the understanding of incarnate beings. So many mysteries surround human beings, and patterns that elude them, allowing them to advance step by step to achieve the sacred goal. There, the ultimate action is accomplished, one that might sanctify the being if such were the divine plans. Nothing is done without reason; certain people are carried by grace to accomplish a particular mission, and they are truly guided by our care. Some beings go astray; they believe they are chosen and dedicated to the service of a great cause, according to their own wishes. Things don't work that way, and there are only too many manifestations of ego in this area. Truly committed beings are not searching for anything; they advance, carried by a love that illuminates their path and guides them every day. Only faith sustains them and allows them to overcome the human baseness that does not cease to emerge, even in a spiritual path. This world is like that. Every day offers an opportunity to grow, to overcome the miasmas of materiality that restrain the evolution of each person. The struggle of life will not stop; it will manifest in one way or another, for the good of humankind.

Strength, courage and perseverance to all, under our blessings.
