Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, November 19, 2015 – 10:00 a.m.

Hear only our voices. Forget all else – life in its material aspect and its consequences. Here lie peace and harmony, which your heart calls for above all. A fervent and surrendered heart such as yours finds its way by serving the Divine. It is not spared; the miasmas of material life affect it and do not deal gently with it. This is how it is, one might say. Spare yourself, my dear daughter. Until the end you offer the best to us by taking down these messages with so much love, and without putting yourself forward as is done elsewhere.

We know this world. From here we can see it even better than when we were incarnate. The deeds and actions of all – nothing escapes us, you can be sure. To us, humility and loyalty are major qualities. They perfectly illustrate the basis for any commitment to an approach like the one we propose. Divested of the unnecessary, [one should] go further and further in a state of surrender, love and trust in this extraordinary power beyond human perception. This is our work, our goal – to always go further in helping our brothers and sisters overcome that which keeps them riveted to the world of matter.

When the subtle being opens to divine splendour, the angels rejoice and make the most beautiful songs ring out. Those beings do exist – remember your first message from Janaki to her very dear Parthasarathi, in which she invoked them. Human beings are truly limited in their knowledge; essential aspects escape them, and for good reasons inherent in the current level of evolution. Our brothers and sisters are advancing, that is the main thing. We rejoice in this. So it is.
