Love attracts love, as the flower's chalice attracts the bee; it's in the nature of things. It's a natural act, but it's also an act of love, of complicity between these two created forms. All has its raison d'être in this vast world. Love is the nectar, which must emanate from you. Your heart totally open must give this divine food plentifully to where it is needed. It's an inexhaustible treasure which you can let flow freely since it will be returned to you from other sources. It's a magic and divine circle.

"Joining the circle is a true blessing; may you excel in it!"
