Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, March 7, 2016 – 10:00 a.m.

All these writings will take on their true dimension in the future; only time will grant them the importance they deserve. They will remain the major achievement of our Mission. In the future, substantial upheavals will occur here below, highlighting what is essential in life, in an incarnation and in all that benefits humankind in this world.

All are not so privileged; it is truly regrettable that so much violence and ugliness continue to hinder a general evolution capable of transforming humanity and bringing it to a very high level of consciousness. Our ceaseless action is aimed in this direction. Good is cumulative, and one day it will create a positive, global force capable of acting for the best. Thus, good and evil coexist and eventually strike a balance.

The divine laws escape human understanding. They fly over time, which is of no use to them, except for occasionally providing some reference points.

Everything that fosters the spiritual elevation of human beings is a divine gift. It is precisely this grace that is bestowed on our Mission; it contributes at its own level to helping beings in search of a true means of progressing through this process – one whose results are so productive. Everything is done for the good. It is up to each one to understand this and to fully benefit from it.
