Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, March 17, 2016 — 10:00 a.m.

Life and death are merely states; they differ in order to accompany the development of the soul in search of purity through a deep personal commitment — one that leads to the highest level of consciousness. Long is the way. When the horizon finally becomes clear, serenity is established, meeting the aspirations of each person at this stage of his or her evolution. From one incarnation to another, the personality takes shape, receiving in accordance with its calls and profound needs, which are necessary for the realisation of the being in all its subtlety. Reaching the stage where such concepts are taken into account is an indication of a true advancement that allows one to proceed, to go further in meeting one's real needs as a seeker. Finding one's way and exploring its resources opens up horizons onto this space: the beyond, as it is called.

There are different worlds; they are quite numerous, providing the opportunity for one to explore the unknown and to discover a certain truth that cannot be grasped here below. Meditation, the overall practice as we suggest it, speeds up the process and reinforces faith, which carries and sustains the human being on this initiatory journey of an incarnation. A human being has so much to learn and does not always go where he or she should — hence the many incarnations required for each one's evolution. The Sahaj Marg path produces the best in this regard. It is up to all to be truly committed in order to achieve the goal.
