Even if Christine ignores you now, she had developed and strengthened herself thanks to all that you have brought to her for years and which allows her, today, to face up a little better to the events of life. She is not the first to act like that with you and she will not be the last one, you know it. Go towards more and more detachment and be in the frame of mind, which we previously evoked without being affected by human feelings which are so disappointing. Give your love spiritually, without expecting anything in return. Love them all boundlessly, unreservedly, carried by the wave of divine light, which runs through you. Whoever is thirsty will drink."
