Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, March 24, 2016 — 10:00 a.m.

As we have said many times, sufferings are not in vain. It is not easy to undertake such a journey and be in a state of surrender and joy, one that can help a person overcome the heaviness and trials arising from the various aspects of an incarnation. The laws of karma cannot be circumvented with respect to what a person's karma holds — whether painful or good; in this way, that which must be is accomplished, revealing the original beauty of the being.

We are witnessing the journey of great and beautiful souls. The path of Sahaj Marg attracts them and, one might say, motivates them. They see it as a means to grow, to perfect what already exists — and even better, to go further, onto the enchanted shores where the united Masters develop the best that is possible, being well committed to this action and more attentive than ever to humanity in distress. They can't do everything they would like to do. They are working in their own manner with all possible love, without being able in the current era to remedy all evils. Preparing the era of the future is their priority, their dearest wish. How to make life more just and humans more fervent and active throughout this spiritual journey that is so instrumental in their evolution! Nothing beautiful and great can be built without commitment at all levels. Our action is broad and generates special results; they cannot be easily assessed, but the approach is surely worthwhile.

Our wish for all of you is motivation for the best, under our blessings.
