Whispers from The Brighter World

Tuesday, April 19, 2016 – 10:00 a.m.

Life is not a long and tranquil river, otherwise where would the challenge lie? Life would lose its purpose, which is to help the human being grow and gain a little wisdom from one lifetime to the next. The process of evolution is very slow. It takes time and multiple trials to reach a satisfactory level of consciousness.

This long human epic has for its goal the attainment of the best possible. Following a spiritual way is a real benefit on a journey that is difficult in many respects. Trials are necessary and formative; without them there would be nothing to drive things forward. The various kingdoms of creation undergo the same fate, allowing an overall and decisive evolution for all.

Will the time of fulness come? Such is the goal of our action: fulness of the heart, of the entire being, subjected on one hand to the vicissitudes of life and on the other hand sufficiently protected to allow one to fully experience, in complete awareness, a spiritual path that is decisive for the rest of one's journey. The egregore of our Mission is growing in strength. It is heartening to witness this and to see all our brothers and sisters carried by this redeeming tide. When they come to rejoin us, the passage is easier. The efforts they have made on this Earth in order to grow save them valuable time. They are welcomed, helped and guided as needed. We do not promise the marvels that are possible in dreams. Reality is enough, and all is well as it is.
