Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, May 5, 2016 – 9:30 a.m.

These messages are not ordinary, we have said it often enough. They materialise a very special energy that will one day be recognised as such. Herein lies the difference with these writings – or more precisely, what distinguishes them from others. Why would we have provided these thousands of pages if such were not the case. Further study of these phenomena will one day bring new insights, on Earth, about many of them. A wall of ignorance still separates humans from reality, which remains concealed for good reason, as it would not be used in the right way – namely, to help humanity advance. As has been said in the past, 'A day will come when spirituality will save the world'. We are not there yet, but the process is being prepared and is accelerating, one might say, towards a desirable evolution that is so very necessary in a world distressed as never before. A life that is easier in various respects does not necessarily lead to a better balance within human beings nor to the happiness hoped for by all.

Many aspects contribute to happiness, but they do not necessarily resolve a collective and personal Karma that each one must comply with.

The subtlety of the divine laws still escapes human beings completely. How could they understand such laws? It would be necessary for all to adhere to the principle of reincarnation, which could clarify things. We are not there yet. The time of true knowledge will come, totally changing life on Earth and leading it to reality.

May that time come, by the grace of God. Endless blessings to all.
