Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, May 18, 2016 – 10:00 a.m.

Love, surrender, action, commitment – life, in other words, in all its manifestations, including of course trials, which are not lacking on this journey that is initiatory in its own way. From life to life the edifice takes shape – each person has his or her own as determined by Karma, this law whose manifestation is inescapable, up to the highest level of consciousness.

Humans must learn, and above all retain, the lessons life imposes on them. All must endure this law – the word is not too strong; nothing is ever simple, and moreover, suffering cannot be avoided. Love, in spite of all this, remains the key word, that which represents hope and life at its best and most gratifying, over the long term. When it comes time to take stock, everything is counted, remembered down to the smallest detail, and humans can then realise their incessant mistakes, their shortcomings and missed opportunities to truly progress. All are doing what they can; the path of Sahaj Marg is liberating, it has this high privilege and does not ascribe to itself a 'reality' that does not exist. Every person has their potential; we help them emerge from a path that is often negative and bring them to the best there is, in this unusual epic where each receives according to his or her call.

The laws of Karma are strict and it is well that way; the divine will provides for it, and thus can be accomplished what must be in order to meet our expectations.

Blessings to all.
