Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, May 26, 2016 – 9:30 a.m.

The time of childhood, of innocence, passes quickly and the human being is then confronted with the reality of life, with trials, which are not lacking.They are formative and necessary, it is said, and at the journey's end – its assessment shows it – they have a preponderant role.

Acceptance, the love it allows to develop within oneself, embellishes each trial; to cultivate this love, in a state of surrender and fervour, is a gift Divine. It elevates the soul towards its highest destiny. A true spiritual undertaking has this noble goal; from one incarnation to the next, a link is created where fervour is maintained. Nothing is lost of what is noble and beautiful. This capital fluctuates, takes on a growing importance, to lead the soul to its total fulfilment.

Following a spiritual way opens up perspectives and adds value to this capital, which is so often ignored by human beings, who are caught in the movement of life and the ambient negativity. They neglect this innate treasure, until the day when the divine Splendour reveals itself in its many manifestations.

When human beings become really aware of this potential, prospects unfold before them; they reassess their understanding of life and become truly committed, for their greatest good. We have this joy of witnessing the commitment of our abhyasis, their progress and the journey they are making on this remarkable path – why not say it, Sahaj Marg is not ordinary and neither are its results.

To all, the best, along with our blessings.
