Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, May 30, 2016 – 10:00 a.m.

Constant repetitions are necessary. Here, as elsewhere, they occur unceasingly. This is how the world is; it cannot be otherwise. What would a life be like without this principle that is decisive in each person's existence. The refinement of the human being hinges on it – it takes so many incarnations to attain a condition that is satisfactory, in the way we understand it. The soul sails along, immortal, in a sense detached from matter; it continues on a journey governed by the divine laws whose complexity cannot be fully grasped by human beings. Quite limited are they in the face of this divine greatness. Humanity believes it has reached a very high level of evolution, but it is nothing of the kind. In a sense, it has reached a satisfactory stage, but still far from its apotheosis. There is nothing to envy, you can be sure. Each incarnation brings what the incarnate being needs for his or her own advancement.

Each level of consciousness has its advantages and disadvantages. Following a spiritual path allows one to save a lot of time in this epic that characterises the evolution of each being living on this Earth.

Life is but a passage, more or less satisfactory depending on the laws of Karma. Sahaj Marg unifies the vibrations, and the Mission forms a whole that fosters the evolution of each person by removing the barriers created by life in its negative aspects. They are numerous, alas, but regular practice in some way harmonises what can be harmonised, and this aspect is very positive, you can be sure.

Special blessings to all.
