Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, August 3, 2016 – 10:00 a.m.

Join us in these blessed places where worries are forgotten, leaving room for the peace of the soul, for this very special state that is not easily attained. There lies the real beauty, that which delights the heart and brings serenity – to the whole being. Human beings, in their complexity, do not usually manage to keep things in perspective. They allow themselves to be diverted by the multiple troubles of life. It is not always easy to face up to these; love is the true remedy, a love that is called, and acquired more or less quickly, depending on the strength of this action. Trials are formative, it is said – this fact is verifiable, but what would it be without the good reasons that bring about these trials when necessary.

Surrender is preferable here. Divine laws are not accessible to human beings, with their current limitations, and this is understandable to a certain extent. The best to all. Blessed and strengthened are our dear abhyasis.
