Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, August 12, 2016 — 10:00 a.m.

The beyond, this unknown, remains a mystery to human beings; it cannot be otherwise in the present era. Times are changing very slowly and they are putting in place that which will come about tomorrow. Such is this planet's evolutionary cycle. However, a completely different world is gradually being built, one where evolution and all that lives here below will follow a pace that is slower and at the same time more active. Everything has its reason for being. Ancient civilisations have left foundations capable of helping present-day humanity. The same will happen again. Nothing — since the beginning of time — has existed in vain; every stone of this edifice is there for a purpose and determines the outcome of this undertaking. It is wise to make the most of the present moment and of what life offers each one. It is sometimes necessary to make choices, and this is not always easy, but destiny stands and rules each one's life, whatever one may plan for. The divine thread must be followed in a state of surrender and faith in the power that guides us.

Blessings to all.
