Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, September 14, 2016 – 10:00 a.m.

Your heart calls out to us fervently and we respond to it. This is in the order of things, and yet a very special bond connects you to us, dearest daughter. We will not go any further so as not to embarrass you, but the facts are there. Nothing beautiful and great can happen outside of a particular setting. Sahaj Marg is in the line of important events that mark this world. It started small and then covered it very widely, and for a very long time.

The divine laws operate at their discretion; human beings do not always understand the significance of the many actions these laws produce. Humans are so small in comparison to this power, they do not readily admit it, yet they must submit to its laws – they cannot do otherwise. A radical change will occur one day, the divine power will provide for it. So it is.
