Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, October 29, 2016 – 10:00 a.m.

These messages constitute a precious asset, why not repeat it, only time gives events and things their true value. Here, we are in a very particular category; simple in appearance, these writings are not insignificant. They carry a subtle energy that escapes current human perception. The world of the future will grasp its full scope; so many things will change and prevail in this world that they would be baffling in the present era.

Everything is being prepared in secret, according to the divine laws, far from human understanding such as it is today. This understanding will have to progress considerably in order to adapt to the many transformations that will occur in the future. Imperceptibly this world is changing, sensitive beings feel it; vibrations are becoming more refined and will become increasingly so. They will be decisive in this advance, preparing the new era willed by a higher power that manages this immensity with brilliance and astonishing perfection, in the chain of events whose reality is beyond human understanding. 'Doesn't everything have its raison d'être.' It takes time for the best to be accomplished, willed by the higher powers.
