Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, November 5, 2016 – 10:00 a.m.

To each, one's own path, one's own destiny – this is inevitable. No one can predict it, or change it, such are the divine laws. It does sometimes take a while to realise this and to admit the need to submit to it. Nothing is done without reason. The important thing is to try to understand why it is necessary to accept it, so as to move forward and adapt in the best way possible to what life has in store.

No one can predict what their life will be – the Great Beings themselves have experienced this and have conformed to the higher will. Their destiny was there, so was it determined for each of them. The spiritual Masters of this Mission have experienced this, and each of them has contributed his stone to the sacred edifice which the Mission constitutes and represents in the world today. What is divinely intended is fulfilled and takes place in accordance with the higher will. Humans are so small before it. What do they know of this power, which is so far beyond human comprehension – they assume and in their wisdom recognise the need to adapt to its laws. How could they do otherwise! Sahaj Marg is said to be the way of wisdom; we ensure that we bring each of our aspirants to the level that is suitable for them to blossom personally and to benefit fully from this wave of love, which this message carries in these moments.

May as many people as possible benefit from it.
