Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, December 7, 2016 — 10:00 a.m.

For the moment, let us not go beyond the limits of present-day knowledge. What matters is to make progress, to truly advance towards the goal that is being targeted here for the good of each of our abhyasis. All of them attract our attention; the involvement of each one is different, and that is in the order of things. All incarnate beings possess a potential and advance at their own pace, although in Sahaj Marg we help each of them with equal attention. We are delighted by the results obtained; we can see many souls awakening to higher consciousness, which they did not imagine, and they benefit all the more from such an opportunity. The great rituals are absent, but even though everything happens in silence and meditation, the results are very convincing — much more than if it were otherwise.

Each spiritual path in this world has its own features and follows its course in its own manner. Sahaj Marg is very productive — we can emphasise it here where we are able to see so many souls blossoming and joining the circle of privileged souls in a very special domain. We have good reason to rejoice. The results, the outcomes, happening in the manner we intend, are not yet perceptible on the human level. No matter. All is well in this sacred space, and it satisfies certain powers that support us in this Mission that is so special in every respect.

All are supported and so very blessed.
