Friday, September 17, 1999 - 8:00 a.m.

You are right... it is the messages that are important, and not the messenger, but she plays a preponderant part in this business and if she requests anonymity, we know and your friends will not forget it either. In the future, they will help souls who are ready to understand not only what they conceal, but also the authenticity of the writing process. Don't worry, even if they remain on the sly for the moment and their diffusion is very limited, in the future they will enlighten many souls and will touch hearts. It is the objective we have set ourselves. They can be understood easily and in a different way than our books. With time, they will take on all their importance. We bless you, my child."

Babuji