Whispers from The Brighter World

My son, in his human dimension, cannot truly assess his work. He is moved by subtle forces leading him to higher planes, thus extending his action significantly. A Master of this level goes well beyond Earthly achievements. This action is in line with his mission and takes place at multiple levels that he himself cannot assess.

See this unique being in him. He deserves the greatest respect of all of you. Such beings, with a mission of the highest level, pass through the Earth, carrying out work that you cannot recognize. Though similar in human appearance, their real dimension is beyond the understanding of their brethren. These incarnations are trying in many respects; they are alone insofar as they do not have equals in their entourage.

They must adapt to a way of life and to the reactions of those around them. Don't think they can resolve everything in the material realm – their power lies elsewhere, you cannot imagine it. Earthlings are very limited in their perceptions, although they think the opposite. They explain everything, they judge, they weigh up, they appreciate with their own possibilities, hence the weakness of their judgements.
