Your friend is right; you are 'our courageous soldier'. Life is a long fight with some times quieter than others, but it remains nevertheless a kind of battle. Victories won over yourself and over the circumstances you are confronted with are gratifying.

"You can go through moments of lassitude and discouragement and thus lose ground temporarily, but with the help of faith and courage, you regain the upper hand. In those moments when grace touches you, you are reinvigorated and you set out again, realizing that your burden has become lighter. Sometimes it is necessary to touch the bottom to cheer up again with increased strength and determination. We follow you and help you in all your states of soul. We are indifferent to none of the aspects of your life. You gave us your confidence; we are happy to count you among our associates. You belong to a great spiritual family, which will keep growing with time... We bless you all."
