Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, March 16, 2001 – 10:00 a.m.

These worlds parallel to yours are not as remote as you all would imagine. The particular vibrations of each one harmonize like sounds of a symphony orchestra, forming a coherent whole. Beyond this life, your vibratory rate propels each of you where you need to go.

Your evolution is decisive in accessing your own elected place.

That is why it's necessary to purify and refine yourselves unceasingly, in order to gain time, in view of the above. The principle is easy to understand. In that system, privileges are not fitting. It is you who forge your destiny and future beyond this Earthly existence.

So you will all better understand why we insist so much on the need to observe yourselves without complacency. Your future life depends on the rigour with which you will have led your personal battle.

Those whom you call 'beings of light' fought to acquire that status. They refined themselves over the course of their many incarnations to reach the higher level.

Nothing can be obtained without exertion. This quest is underway for you all since you aspire to elevate yourselves and do everything in your power to achieve it.
