Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, March 21, 2001 – 10:00 a.m.

Our writings touch on varied topics. At the time one reads them, they may answer a deep-seated question and make one aware of a need to reform this or that behaviour.

Human beings, throughout their lives, have experiences. Happy or not, these enable them to structure themselves and progress. It is the goal of life; these experiences are the guiding thread that leads them towards their destiny. If they accept the price, it enriches them considerably. One must go through difficult situations, it cannot be otherwise.

The life of every person is like that. It represents a priceless mine for one who exploits it correctly.

Wisdom is not acquired easily. How many times must one stumble to get there! Time does its work in the human heart.

When human beings awaken to reality, gratitude overwhelms them. They realize how much the path they have travelled has enriched them, and if they are wise they are thankful. By understanding the meaning of a life well filled, they find peace in themselves and better accept the twists of fate. Let all of you be surrendered to divine Providence. With all our blessings.
