As you see, my son's reply is short, but very nuanced in a few words. You can grasp from it the depth and importance he gives to this exchange. This particular correspondence comes at a time in his life when the weariness, brought about by his workload and age, and manifesting in his physical body, is not making life easy for him. He can hold in his hands a message coming from his Beloved, and that is priceless to him.

Our contacts take place on other planes, and he doesn't necessarily keep the memory of them. Through this means, we can retain one of the subjects already mentioned, in another manner, and persuade him of the validity of all his actions. Not all of them are understood by his entourage. He feels resistance that is painful for him, but he must do his job no matter what, following a plan well established long ago. He cannot deviate from this trajectory.

His way of acting is precise, he is sometimes remotely directed and must satisfy the Higher Order, before pleasing anyone else.

It is good to respect one's Master and the actions he undertakes. He is driven to act in this way for a very specific purpose – to serve the supreme cause.

Even if you don't understand everything, love him – his task is not easy, and whatever happens, he must see his mission through to the end.
