My son is reassured – more than that, he is joyful. To feel that he is appreciated, and that his decisions are approved, is important to him. Like any human being, he refers to a model that inspires his admiration and, in the present situation, all his love.

Our relationship falls into a special category. A Master of his calibre is not an ordinary human being. He is distinguished by a particular vibratory quality that places him far above his fellows. The lives of the Masters who preceded him serve him as a reference.

He is a being apart, but must live among his fellow brethren in all humility.

These differences are not apparent to others. Our aspirants credit him with powers he doesn't have, but they fail to see his true capabilities, that are not really perceptible to the ordinary person.

A very high-level Master incarnates to help humanity, but doesn't expect anything in return. He is understood and loved by a very small number of his disciples who are completely devoted to him. They are pure hearts who have understood what this man, seemingly identical to them, conceals in terms of true greatness. Happy are those who know how to discern and respect it.

These privileged souls vibrate in unison with the incarnated divinity.
