Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, October 4, 2003 – 12:00 p.m.

Your life will change, why do you not believe it? Do not be naive and do not lose heart, all is not over for you. Don't you live rewarding experiences that cannot be found in the joys provided by a walk in a forest or any other sensation produced by the beauties of the nature you are missing? Many would envy you if they knew what you are living inwardly through your channelling perceptions.

Breathe the fresh air from the heights where these contacts with us lead you. Your heart was refined for this at the same time as your gifts. Keep joy in your heart, the joy that is related to the graces you receive when serving us, as you do with so much love and fidelity.

You are my blessed daughter, you have known it for a long time. An attentive father does not remain deaf to his child's call, when hope is lost. Take refuge in your true values, explore your secret garden. It contains wonders that cannot be seen humanly, though they exist; that also, you know. Keep faith in what you are doing, in the importance of this work whose justification will one day emerge – and love us infinitely, in complete surrender. In this way your life will be fulfilled to the end.

Your Beloved Babuji

Find us in the fragrance of the morning, in the softness of the evening when the twilight veils all things, in the air you breathe, in the glorification of God, Creator of the universe and Father of us all.

Remain at peace, in this profound and inalterable joy since it emanates from the Eternal.

Revel in these moments of grace, when your heart surrenders, grateful and full of fervour.

Love us, infinitely, let your heart be like a flame pining to disappear one day in the divine incandescence.

Be blessed, particularly on this day when your soul exults in the greatest adoration.

Enjoy, give thanks and pray, my child.
