Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, April 27, 2001 – 8:00 a.m.

The true greatness of certain beings is not revealed to the world. The aim of their incarnation is not to be idolized. Each of these saints has a specific mission, which they accomplish according to the intended plan. Thus was the great Ramakrishna, who was important at one point in your life.

Human assessment, on that aspect too, is not quite right, and it is better that way. Some missioned people would be hampered in the achievement of their work if they were recognized; many go unnoticed. There is no shortage of examples in history. Let your heart be reassured, they have enlightened the world in their own way, in silence and without publicity, while giving infinite love to humanity.

Although their actions are lost in the memory of humanity, they are engraved forever in the memory of time.

They have maintained the flame that enlightens the world; they have taken it forward and, even if the results are not very perceptible, a big step has been taken towards the awakening of consciousness.

Many beings have reached levels that free them from their chains.

Thus, very slowly, a new era is in the making. It will appear when the time comes; a great step will then be taken for humanity, which will radically change the course of its evolution – this is the goal to be reached.

All will be fulfilled, according to God's plans.
