Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, April 27, 2001 – 10:00 a.m.

Great guides of humanity have never stopped appearing since the dawn of time, and that will not end. New paths are given to human beings to enable them to move forward. These means are suited to the evolutionary level of the aspirants; each one must be able to find what is suitable for himself or herself, according to their aspirations.

Over the course of incarnations, the soul awakens; it reaches its apotheosis after many erring ways. It is the nature of things; there is no exception to the rule on this point. Victory is therefore all the more beautiful, all the more meritorious.

We are happy to be able to give the world a reliable way of advancing in the best of conditions. We are working in this direction with all the perseverance and love that motivate our action. We will be utterly happy when all our brothers and sisters have reached the targeted level. Only then can rest be considered, but how meaningful will it be where we are? This notion does not even cross our minds. What matters is to serve tirelessly.

Our greatest joy is to see a soul awakening to life, to the sublime reality of creation in its most perfect, unique and divine aspects.
