Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, April 29, 2001 – 8:00 a.m.

In this world, everything is mere illusion. You are all only a representation of yourselves, some assembled molecules, vibrating and in tune with this planet's vibrations.

Keep well in mind, all of you, this illusory aspect of your person, take only the essential to heart.

The rest, that is to say your little daily lives, your habits and worries about everything or nothing, what is it, in the light of eternity? A trifle. What matters only is the purpose of your existence in the great divine plan, as well as your place in it, minor though it may be.

This plan does not comprise any dissonance; you need to be able to adapt to it perfectly, by adjusting yourselves as well as possible to this sublime pattern.

All your efforts must be focused on this quest. Once awareness has risen within you, you must no longer lose sight of your objective. It is all about succeeding in this adjustment, which will enable you to find again your real place, your homeland.

Understand clearly, all of you, what is implied in this speech: the process has already started for all of you; you are on your way, and you are shaping your destiny.

You have understood where your priorities are, as well as the efforts you must make to reach the goal.

It is up to you to make your choices in life; nobody can do it for you.

May you all, then, be inspired, and after a hard-fought struggle, win this unceasing and fruitful fight.

Be blessed in your undertakings.
