Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, April 30, 2001 – 8:00 a.m.

Rejoice, all of you through this birthday celebration that is gaining more importance in the world with the passing of the years. It is the Mission that we celebrate. It advances step by step and conquers the hearts that sense the sincerity of this path. Its sobriety and the simplicity of the practice are adapted to modern times.

Communing with oneself, cutting oneself off from the world at some time during the day has become a necessity for our aspirants.

They feel all the benefit they get from this plunging into themselves. They empty their heads of their worries, to let themselves be carried away to other shores, less tumultuous, where the soul can recognize itself and feel it exists. This meditation has its own importance; it leads you all to ecstatic moments that reconcile you with life.

This life does not bring only good moments to you all, but it offers you this way out, towards a luminous world adorned with all graces.

While time is slipping by, you all give them their true place to your abhyas. They open up new horizons to you, you discover another aspect of your person, and your true identity appears to you.

You will discover that you are different, no longer granting the same importance to things around you, knowing how to make other choices that better correspond to your new inner state. By letting the best in you emerge, your everyday lives will be transformed at all levels. This is the desired goal.
