Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, May 17, 2001 – 8:00 a.m.

Your channelling faculties must be maintained so they keep all their sharpness. We try to take as little of your energy as possible. This activity has become necessary to your life; it gives it meaning, and we will keep you as long as possible in this position.

You can already rest reassured about the impact these messages will have. We haven't filled up pages with hollow words and stock phrases. Our words are of another essence. Although they don't fit into a literary framework, discerning hearts will find in them nourishment suitable for their spiritual aspiration. Libraries are full of books addressing all possible subjects, with these messages we set ourselves apart in the Mission. They will eventually find their place, even if they are not accepted by everyone. We don't want to upset people's minds; the most discerning will find this means of communication suits them and will nourish themselves with this special teaching. The most inspiring writings the world over are mostly produced in this way.

Let us not anticipate; let's continue this productive tête-à-tête, fruit of a special relationship that will be able to help our brothers and sisters in more ways than one. Such is our objective and our wish.
