No, the source has not dried up, how can you think that? You should put your mind at rest for our dialogue to begin.

We haven't run out of topics; the teaching we are trying to give through these messages must be accessible to all. When the floodgates of true knowledge are open, each of you can then search for fuller information – we guide you and inspire you for that. We must stay within the limits we have set for ourselves in our discourse. When consciousness opens up to reality, useful information presents itself.

Once the most important part of the work has been done, it is enough to give suitable nourishment that deepens the path already mapped out. Additional elements of esoteric knowledge will reach you in due course, if necessary.

Certain souls, completely detached from this form of teaching, glide above formulas and images, they nourish themselves with the divine essence alone.

When you have all reached this level, no book-related references will be of use to you; you will be beyond words and details concerning the history of creation.

The thirst for knowledge through which you are passing is laudable, it is a significant stage in your progress. When the time has come, we will take each of you far beyond, into a kingdom of beauty and knowledge not currently accessible to you.

Continue on your way with all our encouragement and blessings.
