Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, May 19, 2001 – 8:00 a.m.

Yes, a new race is being born. It is strong and won't let itself be corrupted. It will take a very long time for it to impose itself, before the genetic mutation is complete.

This will take place by degrees, at its own pace, before the new human being really appears over the entire Earth. It is an enormous job, but will be achieved according to the plans laid down.

We already have some of these beings in the Mission, they are the leaders of tomorrow. These children, indigo or blue as you call them, will not only have a superior intellect that they will put to the service of humanity, but will also be characterized by a great spiritual openness. They will mark future times in a way that you cannot imagine.

This poor planet is in the grip of beings who are in the throes of delirium to satisfy their need for power and domination. The lure of gain makes them sacrifice the most elementary laws of respect for the created world. They take insane risks, knowing what they are exposing the world to.

Do they believe they are immortal? They are ransacking, poisoning, destroying ecosystems, and ordinary mortels don't know all of it, fortunately for their peace of mind.

This pivotal period, while undergoing the disastrous effects of mistakes accumulated mainly over the last century, can take comfort in imagining these future times when the poor Earth will be able to heal the wounds caused by humankind and the cataclysms their errors will have engendered.
