Be confident. Life doesn't hold only bad surprises. It sometimes takes unexpected turns that embellish the days. You can see that people of goodwill are appearing around you, you are not completely alone, we make sure of it, my child. We should like to see you surrounded by more people, but that's how it is for the moment.

Besides, you see that this period which is painful for you is productive. We've come back to a topic that has already been discussed for a long time, the future of the planet, giving further details. We are preparing your minds and gradually bringing them to a particular knowledge that comes from the depths of the being. This knowledge is not taught either at a university or in any highly specialized school. It flows in you all and permeates like a beneficial spring. You receive it in your hearts, which are enriched with a precious sediment.

Your mind is elevated without you even realizing it. The least grain of truth benefits you, it shapes your universe, a new world that replaces all your old frameworks, fabricated for the most part by people who believe they are in possession of knowledge.

Then comes the time for personal discoveries, inspired ones, coming from other sources more in tune with true life, the one that doesn't die but which endures indefinitely, well beyond this world, the most precious life of all.
