Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, May 23, 2001 – 8:00 a.m.

Relax, plunge into this universe of beauty that lives within you, we've already spoken about it at length.

Let yourself be carried away, forget the human world where all is illusory. Do not expect anything of others, expect all from God. He is your only wealth, your recourse here below. He alone is reliable, humans are not.

A hundred times you have noticed it, so turn the page. May your eyes look towards His light, may your heart be suffused with His brightness. All is well henceforth, you know the refuge, and it is adversity that is pushing you to His bosom.

Do not get lost on other paths, this time has passed for you and will not come back. You know where the truth lies. Do not let yourself be caught up anymore in the games of this world, they can bring you only disappointments.

Take what is good when it presents itself: the smiles and the joy, the noble sentiments that are not lacking, but do not expect anything else – that is the law of life.

A sunny clearing in the sky is beautiful to look at. It must be appreciated when it occurs, but it's fleeting and lasts only for an instant.

Be strong, my daughter, this strength is in you, it is sufficient to call it; rely on it and on nothing else.

Only God is always present.
