Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, June 17, 2001 – 8:30 a.m.

Advance with detachment, my child, go to what is essential. Focus on what has become most important to you: move faster towards the goal.

Your body is providing you invaluable help in this respect, since by force of circumstances, you are no longer participating in external life.

We know it makes you suffer, but such is your path. Accept this sacrifice – one day, you will bless these circumstances that are saving you precious time.

Take advantage of each moment of your life; use it to transform yourself within, to advance more rapidly towards deliverance.
