We are happy to see these messages suffusing in you and permeating you; this process is specific to each person. They find their own access through the mysteries of your heart. These small brooks meet and form a kind of river which grows in power, like a spring which makes its way under the ground before gushing forth into the open air. Interpret this formula as you will. You have your own sensitivity and you will design your own image of it. We can see how it makes you cogitate as well as the asset you gain from it; we are happy to notice it. If it is said that 'an image is better than a thousand words', it seems to us that all these words pieced together manage to touch your heart; some of them being more powerful than others according to your inner attitude.

"Words have their own power; they can hurt, but they also do a lot of good. One must be careful about them and not use them wrongly, either in writing or in speech.

"Mind well your language; the vibration of your word is double-edged. Make sure you always use it only in the better sense and advisedly."
