Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, August 22, 1999 – 10:00 a.m.

Love attracts love, just as the flower-cup attracts the bee; it is in the order of things.

It's a natural act, but also an act of love, of complicity between these two created forms.

Everything has its reason to exist in this vast world.

Love is the nectar that must emanate from you all. Your hearts, totally open, must give this divine food in profusion where there is a need. It's an inexhaustible treasure that you can let flow freely, without restraint, since it will return to you from other sources. It is a magical and divine circle.

To enter the circle is a true blessing, may you excel in it.
