Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, November 27, 1999 – 8:00 a.m.

There is a very long way to go to arrive where François is, but it is worthwhile.

There are souls ready to be guided towards the final goal. It is easy then to co-opt them so as to direct them more quickly, where this is required. At the beginning, there is sometimes a confluence of circumstances that means it can go faster for some. Moreover, God gives His grace where He wishes, with His own criteria, which have nothing to do with those of humans.

Yesterday was a beautiful day for you, my dear child; we know how much this news makes you happy. What is proposed to your son-in-heart also touches you. He will do a lot, he has the means; his companion will assist him wonderfully. They form – the two of them – an efficient team.

We have had our eyes on them for a long time. He has exactly the profile for this action relating to the structuring of the Mission worldwide, considering the various aspects that will bring it completely into step with future times.

Spiritual life does not exclude an involvement in material life, with which millions of brothers and sisters have to contend.

We will not be absent from the struggles that the third millennium will generate.
