Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, September 13, 1999 – 8:00 a.m.

Yes, my daughter, your life will change in some way. These two dark years were fruitful for you, much more than you imagine.

You see how it's all relative – these poor human tribulations are necessary to one's evolution.

Properly utilized, they are precious and constitute your capital. You keep your love and gratitude for us intact.

Never change, stay in this frame of mind. Always give thanks for what you get to experience. Time on Earth seems long to all of you, but in the face of eternity it is only a breath of the Earth, which is to say, not much.

Time, on Earth, is an illusory notion. You are all under its domination, whereas it is a mere vibratory mechanism on which your vibrations tune themselves and make you give it importance.

On this planet, it must be so, it is the rule of the game. Other discoveries await you; you will make them in your future lives.

Be content with this current exploration, everything in its time.

Courage to you all.
