Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, September 17, 1999 – 8:00 a.m.

You're right, it's the messages that are important and not the messenger, yet she plays a leading role in this affair and if you request anonymity, we still know, and your friends won't forget it either.

In the future, the messages will help prepared souls understand not only what they conceal, but also the authenticity of the writing process.

Be at peace. Even if they remain under wraps for the moment and their distribution is very limited, in the future they will enlighten many souls and touch hearts. That's the objective we've set ourselves.

They can be approached easily and in a different way than our books.

With time, they will take on all their importance. Be blessed, my child.
