Friday, October 15, 1999 - 8:00 a.m.

You, who have access to these messages, do you realize how lucky you are? You have, a little, your fill of them, but all that will settle and will let emerge at the bottom of your hearts, a mark which you do not even suspect. In the future, open-minded people will delight in them; they will seemingly focus much more on the content than the mere form. They will be able to derive from it all the quintessence.

"You, yourselves, you will need the benefit of hindsight to realize what you have received. It is about a little special transmission, which you cannot really assess. What matters is to benefit from it even if that creates in you some constraints. We know that your system functions well; you take part in this work heartily. You should always let it speak, act, and open up to life in all its forms; you will no longer see it the same way."

Babuji