Friday, October 15, 1999 - 10:00 a.m.

We have had a long series on love; let's leave off there for the moment. The topic is inexhaustible and we will revert to it. It must be present at every moment of your life and must direct it. You will not see your fellow men with the same eyes any more, some of them will seem more bearable to you.

"Each one's life is fraught with obstacles; that is the way it goes. The tragedies it has in store for you can affect you very deeply and modify your behaviour by making you unpleasant, even aggressive. It is always necessary to try to understand before judging. The character of some individuals is difficult to tolerate; they suffer from it sometimes, when they realize that they spoil the life of others.

"Everything is enlightening and can benefit both sides. Do your level best, being always surrendered to your Master who can see deep (down) into people's hearts."

Babuji