You cannot know what real love is. You come near to it, you feel the vibration of it, but the fact that you became incarnate, you are not truly enabled to reach this state.

"Love is a specifically divine element. It attracts you, you feel it vibrating in you, you tend towards this sublime state, and while advancing towards the goal, you start becoming imbued with it. You aspire to it with all your might; it is your soul, which calls it hopelessly. This process has only one goal, only one objective: to lead you to Him, to let you be overwhelmed and to become only as one with Him. Fusion: that is the outcome of this vast program, which requires so much time, effort and a very strong eagerness to arrive at it.

"God never remains insensitive to the call of His creature. The aspirant truly motivated is heard, supported and guided. Arriving at this destination is a nice achievement; thereafter another trajectory will be proposed to you and if you so want, you will be able to engage in it with full knowledge of the facts."
