Michel was expecting a conclusion to this third series; we will give it to him.

"You all have done, in your respective ways, a very good work with these messages. We appreciate and we thank you. That is a material work, which is not negligible. The spiritual impact is very interesting; they have made you progress. Your mind has opened up on certain aspects characterizing the human being in general and concerning you too. They enable you to observe yourself and to analyse behaviour, which you can try to modify. Therefore, all this work is positive. By reading again these writings and by becoming more imbued with them, you will be able to measure the long way you have come. What they produce in you in terms of effect will be the same on your brothers and sisters, who will read them and try to absorb them. A simple reading is not sufficient, a second reading is better. There is in them much more depth than it may seem from the first impression; this is why repetitions are necessary.

"We give you food for thought; it's up to you to assimilate them as is proper. Perhaps they will transform your life, if they actually reach their objective; it is up to you to decide. We bless you all and we will continue, since the 'heart', unanimously, asks for a continuation."
