Friday, March 31, 2000 – 8:00 a.m.

Babuji entrusted you to me and you must adapt to my way of doing things, which is not at all his. As far as you are concerned, we know that you only work with your heart; rest assured, I am not a torturer.

We will do good work together. This work, done in the shadows, will one day put you into the full light.

Your journey can serve as a model; some people will recognize themselves in you and also find the courage to move forward through faith. There is no lack of cases like yours, in the past and in the present, but everyone seeks a resonance corresponding to their own and likely to touch them. Human beings need models and reference points throughout their lives. In the face of suffering, all are equal, acceptance is not easy. The key lies deep in people's hearts; still we need to help them find it.

The Venerable