Don't forget that being able to serve us on the Earth is a blessing. It is a choice many great souls make in asking to come back to help humans.

There is no privileged place to serve the Almighty; wherever it is, what matters is to surrender to his will. So please don't pine anymore about being here and chosen to take on a role that suits him. You must give thanks each day for that, and comply joyfully with what is expected of you.

Think of these great beings who have come to enlighten humans and without whom the Earth would not experience such progress spiritually.

Each in their own way must give what they can, and consider themselves fortunate to be able to do so. It doesn't matter how long it takes; time is an abstract notion that has no place in God's plans.
